Frequently Asked Questions

Adams Prep League is an equal-play time league with focus on player development.

Age - To play in the Adams Prep League, eligibility will be determined by birth year as of January 1 of the respective year. For each competitive year, only players age 13, 14, and 15 will be eligible to play, regardless of school grade level. For example, for the 2011-2012 seasons, this will be any player born in the birth years of 1998, 1997, or 1996.

Cost - $ 950 per season includes home and away jerseys and one pair of socks. In addition weekly practices, games and play-off games.

Payment – Each team manager will collect from the players either a check or cash for payment. The ISHL also offers Paypal.

Practices / Games – Weekly practices (half and full ice) with an 18 game season with play-offs. Each team may be scheduled for games or practices at any of the area rinks. Games are typically held on Saturday afternoons. The schedule will be written in an effort that practices will be at the rink from which the team was formed.

Season – The season typically begins with practices the first week of October and games beginning about two weeks after that. Play-offs typically begin mid February with the Championship game at the end of February.

Team Formation - Teams will be formed in the Adams Prep League by the ISHL through the individual host rinks. Emphasis will be placed on forming balanced teams. The Adams Prep League will honor as much as possible requests for car pooling, siblings on the same team, and will consider other special requests. The ISHL will conduct player evaluations at locations to be announced (see flyer). Typically there are 10 to 11 teams each season.

Player Draft - After the evaluation process, the Prep team composition committee will conduct a player draft for the purpose of assigning players to teams. Teams will be formed with the emphasis of placing players of various abilities on each team in order to form teams that will be as equally competitive as possible.

NOTE: If you are a player on a Bantam AA or Midget Travel team, you may not play in the Adams Prep League. If you are a player on a travel Bantam A team, you are eligible to play in the Adams Prep League, provided other rules herein are met (see ISHL Rule Book for more detail on this).
